

[Medigy CoP] FW: The Community for Tech's Deepest Thinkers

3 messages

shahid@shah.org <shahid@shah.org>

7 January 2022 at 02:39

To: Radhika Narayanan <radhika.narayanan@netspective.org>

Cc: Mohd S <smohd@maxinov.com>, PUJA BHATTACHARJEE <puja@maxinovip.com>, ajay@citrusinformatics.com

Hi Radhika – this is great content inspiration for our CoPs managers and contributors guide and policy documents. Instead of just saying what a community is, it has detailed examples of what outcomes are possible with properly run CoPs. At your convenience please read the content below and add this kind of information to our CoP guides so that when a customer asks "Why would I want to have XYZ CoP" we would be able to answer it with outcomes like below.

Thanks.

Shahid.

From: Mario at The Generalist <mario@readthegeneralist.com>

Sent: Thursday, January 6, 2022 7:32 PM To: shahid+readthegeneralist.com@shah.org

Subject: The Community for Tech's Deepest Thinkers

We're taking the wraps off one of The Generalist's secret superpowers – the private community.

The Generalist

Hey friends,

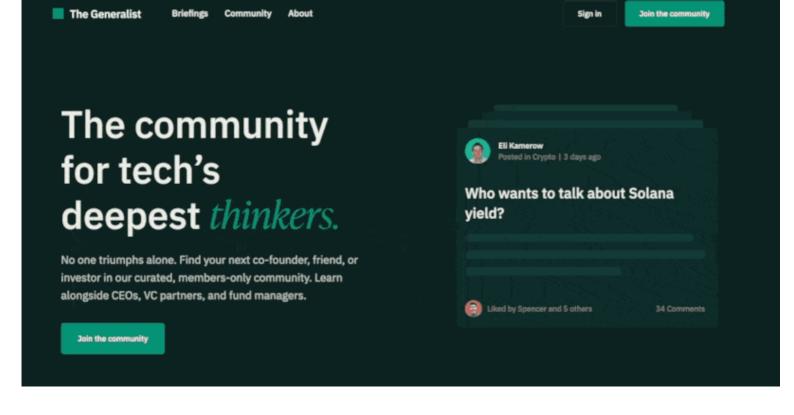

Happy 2022!

For many of us, a New Year presents an opportunity to set new goals; to commit to new ways to push and improve ourselves.

It's with that in mind that I'm excited to take the wraps off The Generalist's Community. While we've been running this private, high-caliber group for the past year, this is the first time we're sharing details about what makes it magical and how you can join.

If you're looking to accelerate your learning, improve your investing, and meet fellow builders in 2022, join us here.

...Or keep scrolling to learn why it's been called "one of the highest quality communities on the internet," "an absurdly high-caliber braintrust," and "web3's best kept secret."

The benefits

What makes this community so magical? We've focused on driving value in four key areas. If these are important to you, I think you'll love it.

- 1. Valuable connections. We make tailored introductions for every new member, in addition to making curated connections on a monthly basis. Our goal is to help you meet people that can radically improve the trajectory of your professional life.
- 2. Insightful conversations. You'll learn by having meaningful conversations with some of the smartest people in tech. If you like to discuss public and private markets, radical innovations, favorite books, and new management techniques, come join us.
- 3. Expert talks. Every month and sometimes more we bring in expert investors and builders to share their knowledge. For the many lifelong learners that read The Generalist, this serves as an enduring curriculum.
- 4. Impactful investments. By learning and connecting with tech's deepest thinkers and most ambitious builders, you'll be exposed to investment opportunities that might not surface elsewhere.

Delivering a 10-100x experience

We want The Generalist community to be the best investment you make in yourself, delivering a 10-100x return. We try to do that by engineering for outcomes with a super high return potential. For example:

- Meeting a co-founder.
- Meeting an enduring thought partner.
- Making a key hire.
- · Making a real friend.
- Making a better decision about what space to tackle for your next startup.
- Finding your next job.
- Finding an awesome investment.

- Learning something that changes you.
- Learning something that brings you substantially closer to your professional goals.

We hope that every community member experiences at least one of the above, and hopefully several, many times over. The compounding impact of even just one can be profound.

Our impact

We think of our community as small but mighty. Here's what a few members have said about the community's positive impact:

I came here for the great research and writing but stay here and continue to engage because of the community.

- Ho Nam, co-founder of Altos Ventures; early investor in Roblox, Coupang, and many more.

It's hard to say if The Generalist is a social network of the sharpest business minds or a professional network of the nicest and most values-driven people in tech. Of course, it's both—as well as a kind of intellectual incubator for anyone looking to create and grow businesses.

— David Phelps, founder of Eco DAO and Forem Education

The Generalist community has enriched my life, both personally & professionally. I've never seen another forum curate such a thoughtful, fun, and forward-thinking group of humans.

— Annika Lewis, Grants Program Lead at Gitcoin

The Generalist is one of the highest quality communities on the internet. It's brought me friendships, helped me learn about new web3 projects, and surely resulted in an expansion of my bank account. That's only possible because Mario is such a thoughtful community builder. By joining you will not only get more access to his ideas but to the amazing group of humans he has managed to curate.

- Nick deWilde, Founder of Invisible College; Advisor at Guild Education

I hope you'll meet many more happy members.

It's time

If you've thought about joining the community in the past, now is the perfect moment to take action. We'll be kicking off the year with a bang, with a ton of great events already scheduled including talks from Ho Nam (co-founder of Altos Ventures), Sean Summers (CMO of Mercado Libre), and Chris McCann (founder of Race Capital; early FTX and Solana investor).

Bring serendipity and superpowers to your 2022 by hopping aboard today.

I am psyched for this new chapter. I think it will give us all deeper ways to interact and more powerful ways to learn.

I am extremely grateful to have you as a reader and supporter.

Great days ahead,

Mario

Unsubscribe | Update your profile | 155 W 23rd St, 7th Floor, New York, NY 10011

Radhika Narayanan < radhika.narayanan@netspective.org>

7 January 2022 at 09:23

To: "Shahid N. Shah" <shahid@shah.org>

Cc: Mohd S <smohd@maxinov.com>, PUJA BHATTACHARJEE <puja@maxinovip.com>, Ajay Kumaran <ajay@citrusinformatics.com>

Thanks.

I've added this as a reference to the relevant page on GPM, which I'll read and incorporate.

Kind regards, Radhika

[Quoted text hidden]

Radhika Narayanan

shahid@shah.org <shahid@shah.org>

7 January 2022 at 13:49

To: Radhika Narayanan <radhika.narayanan@netspective.org>

Cc: Mohd S <smohd@maxinov.com>, PUJA BHATTACHARJEE <puja@maxinovip.com>, Ajay Kumaran <ajay@citrusinformatics.com>

Radhika – when I share email threads you'll want to store the actual *.msg file or save the email as a PDF and save it in the same GPM folder with a link.

See: how_to_save_gmail_as_pdf

Emails are ephemeral and they are end-user specific so you should only refer to them as (a) links if the link is public or (b) as a PDF or *.msg file.

If you're not sure about the above, ask me or Ajay (or anyone else).

In case I missed it in the past, if anyone is not saving emails as either *.msg or *.pdf in GPM let's remind them. Otherwise, when we return to the work in the future, we'll lose the content.

Thanks,

Shahid.

[Quoted text hidden]